

Before I sigh my last gaspe let me breath
 Great Loue! Some Legacies; Heere I bequeath
 Myne Eyes to Armes if myne Eyes can see
 If they bee blind, then Loue, I giue them thee.
 My Tongue to fame; To Ambassadors myne Eares
 To women or the Sea, my Teares

Thou Loue hast taught me heere before
 By making her mee serue her who had twenty more
 That I should giue to none but such as had too much before

My Constancy I to the Planets giue
 My Truth to them who at the Court do liue
 Myne Ingenuity and Openesse
 To Jesuits; To Buffons my Pensiuenesse
 My Silence to any who abroad hath been My money to a Capuchin
 Thou Loue taught me by appointing mee
 To Loue there where no Loue receiue could bee
 Only to giue to such as haue an Incapacity

I giue my Reputation to those Whoe were my Friends; Mine Industrie to Toes.
 To Schollers I bequeath my Doubtfulnes
 My Sickness to Physicians or Excesse
 To Nature all that I in rhyme haue writ
 And to my company my wit
 Thou Loue by making mee adore
 Her who began this toke in mee before
 Taught me to make as though I gaue when I did but restore

To him for whom the Palsing bell next tolls
 I giue my Phisicke booke; my written Rolles
 Of small Courtpails I to Bedlam giue
 My brasse Medals vnto them to eate
 For want of bread. To them w^{ch} passe among All forainers my English tongue
 Thou Loue by making mee loue one
 Who thinks her friendship a fit portion
 For younger ~~brothers~~ ^{brothers}, dost my gifts thus disproportion
 Therefore I giue no more; But Ie vnder
 The world by dying, because Loue dyes too
 Then all your beautyes will be no more worth
 Then Gold in mines, where none do draw it forth
 And all y^e Graues no more y^e shall haue,

then a

Then a Sun-Deed in a Goume
Shou loue laughor mee by making mee
Loue her who doth neglect both mee or thee
To invent or practice this one way to annihilate all three.
